PAGO PAGO CANNOT FURNISH NAVY COAL

From Tutula, Samoa, a correspondent to the Army and Navy Journal writes: "The Italian cruiser Liguria called at Pago-Pago on the 27th of June on her way from Tahiti to Numea. She stopped for coal, but the coaling station at Pago is not permitted to furnish coal to warships unless in cases of necessity, so she had only a friendly welcome. She saluted the flag immediately after entering the harbor, and the Adams returned the salute, the high surrounding hills throwing back magnificent echoes. The Liguria is commanded by Prince Luigi, Duke degli Abruzzi, a cousin to the present King of Italy, and of course his officers are picked men. The Duke himself is a well known Arctic explorer, and talks most entertainingly of some of his Northern experiences, even making light of the loss of parts of two fingers through freezing. The commandant, Commander Underwood, lunched aboard the Italian ship while all on shore enjoyed the strains of a rarely delightful band, which was equal to a fine orchestra. In the afternoon the Duke and the commandant took a long walk all about the naval station, the Duke being interested in all he saw, and finally had 'afternoon Kava' at the native house of District Chief Manga. Later a dinner was given by the commandant to the Duke and several of his officers, and the Liguria steamed out of port at six o'clock on the following morning, having left a most agreeable impression behind her. She is making an extensive cruise in the South Seas and will return to Italy next winter."

CAPTAIN FELL INTO THE BAY

The arrival of the American-Hawaiian liner Hawaiian yesterday morning was marked by an accident that might easily have proved fatal. Just after the steamer docked Captain Delano started to descend a light ladder that had been placed against the side of the ship. He had the ship's papers with him in a portfolio and did not notice that one rung of the ladder was missing. When he reached the broken place he missed his footing and plunged into the water. The steamer was only a few feet from the pier and it was the greatest luck that the captain struck neither wharf or ship for in either case the outcome might have been fatal. When he came to the surface he grasped a rope that had been thrown to him and was hauled out still clinging to the papers. The steamer's passage was uneventful, the only vessel sighted being the tank steamer Argyle which left this port Wednesday morning. Fine weather prevailed on the entire trip which was accomplished in nine and one-half days. The Hawaiian brings a miscellaneous cargo for this port. There are 363 rails for the Waiulua plantation besides big shipments of lumber, lime, coal, flour and feed amounting in all to 2,500 tons. She will take away about 8,000 tons of sugar, 4,000 from this port and 4,000 from Kahului and Hilo. She will probably get away from Honolulu the first of next week.

The Doric Sails.

Early yesterday afternoon a cablegram was received by Hackfeld & Co. announcing the departure of the Occidental & Oriental liner Doric from San Francisco. She got away on time at 1 p. m. She is scheduled to reach this port on the 25th but may get in earlier. The Ventura should have left yesterday afternoon an hour after the Doric. She is scheduled to reach Honolulu on the 24th and will bring the mail unless the San Francisco postal authorities make another mistake. Another cablegram received yesterday announced that the O. & O. steamer Coptic from Yokohama left on time. She brings 250 tons of freight for this port and should arrive on the 23rd.

Went to Places.

After making a gallant fight for life for nearly a week the old steamer Hawaii, one of the pioneers of the Wilder fleet, has at last succumbed to the elements. Last Friday she was towed out to the reef on the Ewa side of the harbor entrance, and her sea cocks opened. In spite of the heavy surf she did not break up but last night the breakers were too much for her and her masts, funnel and upper works went by the board. The hull still lies on the reef, but it is only a matter of a few days before that is broken up too.

Shipping Notes.

The schooner Ada will go to Puuloa today for firewood. The Ewa half of the sea-wall at the foot of Fort Street is about completed. The Pierre Loti will finish discharging today or tomorrow and the Cambronne will take her place at Naval Dock No. 1. The ship Erskine M. Phelps is on her way to this port from Philadelphia with 3,000 tons of sewer pipe and 2,000 tons of coal for the army.

The schooner Ka Mo'i got away yesterday afternoon for Kohala. She looks like a new vessel with her new planking and fresh coat of paint.

The Likeli brought sixteen polo ponies belonging to the Maui polo team on her last trip. She got away on her regular run last night one day late.
